Jimmie Reynolds Was Only Confessing.

The following report of the opening part of the speech of Mr. James B. Reynolds, the President's investigator, at the annual meeting of the University Settlement society, is taken from the quarterly report:

"Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen—About ten days ago I received a notice saying that the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury was invited to make an address at the meeting (7:30 afternoon). It would have been my proper duty to forward that notice to the Assistant Secretary and Treasurer, a gentleman who happens to have the same name as myself and the same initials, and to have graduated at another college the same year that I graduated at Yale.

"A year and a half ago, when I was in the China Sea, I was approached by a man who said: 'I understand you have been appointed Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.' I told him I was so sorry he was so far away. I had a more satisfactory notice from the Customs Inspector, when I was entering the port of New York, who greeted me with a recognition. I knew something was wrong; but I did not quite understand what it was until the inspection of my trunk was completed, when he casually remarked: 'Mr. Reynolds, you are perhaps aware that there was a bill passed at the last meeting of Congress increasing the salary of inspectors at New York. I believe that the bill is now on your desk, and I hope that as soon as convenient after you get to Washington you will sign it.' I assured him I would. 'I must apologize for this much of personal reference. As the girl said to the priest: 'Father, I am not boasting, I am confessing.'"

BAD NINTH FOR CLEMENS

But He Pulled Out of a Bad Hole and B-M Won

LACONIA WAS DEFEATED

Local Southpaw Allowed But Five Hits and Altogether It Was a Good Game to Watch—There Was a Small Crowd.

Laconia of the New Hampshire State League made its appearance at the latter grounds yesterday afternoon for the first time this season and were defeated by the locals, 3 to 1, in a good game. Clemens, the southpaw, was in the box for the locals and held the visitors down in line shape, though his little balloon ascension in the ninth when he passed three men in succession with only one hand down made things look dark for him. But it was only for a minute as the next man hit a grounder to Clemens who fielded one runner out at the plate and Ball doubled on the latter at first ending the game. Laconia got their only runs in the first inning when they made three of their five hits of the game off Clemens. Lowry, the first man up for the visitors, rapped out a two bagger to left and went to third on Dyer's scratch hit on the first base line which Clemens slipped down on. Mathieu hit in front of the plate and Ball touched out Lowry attempting to score. Sullivan then rapped out a single by second and Dyer scored from second. Shaw went out on a fly to Rudolph and Alcott fanned. After this Clemens was not so easy and allowed but two more hits in the eight innings. Several times Laconia got men on bases through Clemens' passes, but sharp fielding soon cleaned them off.

The locals got their runs one at a time in the second, fifth and sixth innings through clean hitting at the right times, two of the tallies being earned. In the second inning Cotter singled, stole second and scored on Fraser's single. In the fifth Clemens singled and scored on Monahan's two bagger to deep left. Fraser scored in the sixth after singling, going to second on Rudolph's out and coming home on Shea's single.

Notes on the Game.

The official score cheated Pease out of his chance to bat in the seventh. The thirteenth victory, unlucky number but we will make it fourteen today. Jack Fraser was up four times and made three hits, striking out the last time.

The fans who stayed at home yesterday missed an interesting game of ball.

Not a man dared even attempt to steal a base on Ball, and they kept mighty close to first.

After Clemens beat out a grounder to short the Laconia captain thought he didn't need a runner any more.

Fraser ought to be a good all round player after this season is over. He was in the left garden yesterday.

Two not a crowd that will support a ball team a great while. Less than a hundred people, and a good game.

There is a vast difference in size between Empire Cotter and his big brother, the intercity's left fielder.

What's the matter with putting out the flag over Main street on the days of ball games here. A good many people kept posted by it.

PROF. W. L. SHELDON.

Native of Rutland Dies at His Home in St. Louis.

The following dispatch received in Rutland on Thursday night from St. Louis, Mo., tells of the death of Prof. Walter L. Sheldon at Rutland:

"Prof. Walter L. Sheldon, born in Rutland, Vt., in 1858, and for many years identified with the Ethical society of St. Louis, which came about by a series of three lectures he delivered in 1886 in Memorial hall. Since that time he has been the leader of the society, and was well known as a platform lecturer. He was a follower of the teachings of Prof. Felix Adler of the New York Ethical society and a strong attachment was formed between the two men. In addition to his work as lecturer and student, Prof. Sheldon was author of a number of books on ethics. His body will be cremated."

DIED BROKEN-HEARTED.

report of Suicide of Tom Moulton in Los Angeles.

Further particulars concerning the suicide of Thomas J. Moulton in Los Angeles, Calif., Friday, May 31, state that he was broken-hearted by the divorce secured by his wife. The Los Angeles Examiner says of the sad case:

"Broken-hearted and dejected at being cast off by his wealthy wife; brought to the threshold of justice to answer to a charge of having embezzled money from his employer, Thomas J. Moulton, collector for the Pacific Screen company, shot and killed himself yesterday morning on the stairway near the office of the District Attorney at the court house, rather than face the consequences of his speculations. It was a sudden and unexpected ending to an unfortunate and erring life.

According to statements made yesterday by those who have known him, Moulton was a man of good habits, but was weak on money matters. He had been detected in misappropriating about $1,000, and at the time of the shooting, was going, in company with three of his accusers, to lay his misdeeds before the District Attorney. Moulton was walking behind his companions, who were surprised to hear a shot, and turning, saw the dying man reel to the bottom of the stairway, his pistol still clenched in his hand. He died almost instantly.

Local acquaintances of the dead man knew but little of his past, but in his pockets were found letters that tell of divorce proceedings not then ended. One of these was from his attorney in Cabot, Vt., in which it told that his case had not yet been taken up in court, and he was advised to try for a divorce in a California court. The attorney speaks in the letter, which was dated May 25, 1906, of being able to force alimony from the wife.

The other letter was dated at Barre, Vt., January 10, 1907, and was from his wife, who wanted him to withdraw his divorce case, and evidently allowed her to get the decree. The letter concludes as follows:

"You have ruined the best part of my life. Why can you not let the right thing now? You say yourself you ought to have the matter settled up. Then why do you not help to do so by making matters easy for me? From Net."

Moulton had told friends that his wife had only recently obtained a divorce from him and that he was broken-hearted. On his body were found a number of small pictures, all of one woman. There was nothing to show who the woman was, what influence she has had on his life or the act that put an end to it.

George W. Darlington, president of the Pacific Screen company, discovered about four months ago that Moulton had retained money belonging to the firm and it was agreed at that time that the collector would have a chance to pay the money back. A certain amount was held back from his monthly salary, but more recent misappropriations of money resulted in the matter being brought to the attention of legal authorities.

Accompanying Moulton to the district attorney's office at the time of the shooting were George W. Darlington, Attorney D. C. Porter and R. J. Simpson, a friend of Darlington's. They had previously interviewed the president of the American Bonding company, who had advised them to go before the district attorney.

Moulton was 40 years of age. His divorced wife was two years his junior. He has been in California for several years and often had financial difficulties. No living relatives of the dead man are known.

A DIRE PROPHECY.

By Mrs. Frank Steunenburg, Wife of Murdered Man.

Walla Walla, Wash., June 8.—The trial of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone is the commencement of a national struggle between the United States and organized labor that will eventually lead to a rebellion. This is the statement of Mrs. Frank Steunenburg, wife of the former Idaho governor killed by Orchard's bombs. "The thought that his life was at stake did not influence my husband in what he thought was right. After completing his term as Governor he never believed his life was in danger and had practically forgotten the ordeal through which he passed."

Mrs. Steunenburg seems to have no hatred of the man who killed her husband.

GLAZE WILD LOST GAME

Boston Beaten by Detroit Yesterday, Score 5 to 3

MANY ERRORS BY BOSTON

They Also Failed to Get to Seiver Except in the Fifth Inning—Boston Nationals Lost to Pittsburgh, 5 to 4.

Boston, June 8.—Glaze's wildness and errors by the Boston team enabled Detroit to pull out another victory yesterday by the score of 5 to 3. The visitors got but four hits off the former Dartmouth man. Seiver pitched fine ball with the exception of the fifth inning, when Boston got to him and scored their only runs of the game.

The score by innings:

GOOD RACING EXPECTED.

I. N. Chase and G. E. Whitney to Send Some Fast Ones to Rutland.

Rutland, June 8.—Some good racing at the fair to be given September 3, 4 and 5 by the Rutland County Agricultural society is assured if those signifying their intentions of coming make entries. I. N. Chase of Brandon and George E. Whitney of Burlington have both said they would bring their string of race horses to this city for these dates, and as the track has been put in as good condition as the weather will allow, some good racing may be expected.

Among the string to be brought by Mr. Chase are: Forests, 2:10½; Advance 2, 1:4½; Little Tuf, 2:29½; and Owens Dunmore, 2:15½. Some of these have been on the grand circuit, making names for themselves that are well known among the leading horsemen of the country.

Horses are continuing to arrive at the fair grounds training stables, where they will be conditioned and trained by expert horsemen for the fair. Some of the last to arrive are: Ella D, by George Lambert, owned by James Daley of Rutland; May Jingles by Gingle, owned by Joseph Gilson of this city. Another fast horse from New York is expected today.

SEES PLOT TO ROB

"BIG BILL" OF HIS GALLUSES

Ex-Senator William E. Mason of Illinois Tells a Fearful Tale.

Washington, D. C., June 8.—William E. Mason, by some remembered as formerly a senator from Illinois, called at the White House early this week. Just to preserve his reputation as a joke, Mr. Mason talked to the reporters as follows:

"I have discovered a Fairbanks plot. The tailors' convention, recently held in Chicago, passed resolutions that galluses should go out of use as an article of dress and that belts should take the place of them. Now, I believe the Fairbanks men have put up this game, for how can a fat man like Taft make a race without galluses?"

Then Mr. Mason announced seriously that he was a candidate for election to the United States Senate from Illinois.

"I am feeling pretty good now, for the president has just told me that he will keep hands off during the campaign in our state," he said.

"As Culson and the governor and the mayor have said the same, I think I have a pretty good chance of beating Bro. Hopkins. If I can't get a majority in the primaries in two-thirds of the counties, I won't be a candidate at all."

THE GOULD FAMILY TROUBLES.

Howard and His Wife in Court on Her Complaint.

New York, June 8.—The case of Mrs. Howard Gould, who has instituted suit for a separation from her husband, Howard Gould, was given its first public airing in court Thursday. The occasion was the hearing of arguments on motion of counsel for Mr. Gould to strike out certain allegations in Mrs. Gould's complaint. Arguments of considerable length were made both for and against the motion, and at the conclusion the attorneys were given until Monday to file their first brief.

The ground on which Mrs. Gould is suing her husband, is shown by parts of complaint read by counsel for Mr. Gould, first abandonment of Mrs. Gould by her husband; second, the allegation that the habits and conduct of Mr.

HOWARD GOULD.

Third son of the late Jay Gould, now being sued by his wife for a limited divorce.

Gould are such that it was improper for his wife to live with him; third, that since September last he has neglected his wife and refused to provide for her except that he paid for her support at a New York hotel since that time; and fourth, that Gould had created his wife with extreme cruelty, employing spies to harass her, causing her mail bag to be tampered with maintained illicit relations with women of bad character and that he employed an ex-convict and several New York detectives to secure improper evidence against Mrs. Gould.

Delancey Nicholl, who argued the case for Mrs. Gould, said that every allegation against Mr. Gould will be denied when the answer to the suit is filed. He maintained that the charges to which he objected as scandalous and irrelevant did not tend to support the allegation of cruelty. He especially objected to the charge that for three years Gould had maintained illicit and immoral relations with women of bad character, and had conducted himself in this respect in an open and notorious manner. He declared that the charges were made for the purpose of putting defendant in an embarrassing position, and that in other cases where such allegations have been introduced, the court has stricken them out.
